On October 8th 2009, I attended a debate held by the Bremerton Kiwanis between the current Municipal Court Judge James Docter and his opponent Ed Wolfe. During his statements James Docter challenged Ed Wolfe to produce times that he had spent as a Pro Tem Judge on the bench during a criminal case. At which time James Docter stated "neither me nor my clerks have found any evidence of this".

During the question session Rob Schneider asked James Docter if he was using city employees, getting paid with tax dollars, to do research for his campaign. This question was asked three times in secession and each time it went unanswered. Then Rob asked James Docter if using a city employee for campaign research was wrong. This was asked twice before James Docter responded that it would be wrong.

I believe that given the opportunity three times to change his statement, and the fact that he didn't, leads a reasonable person to conclude that James Docter has in fact used the court clerks during working hours and municipal court computers, to help research for his campaign and that this warrants and investigation.
